Axcelis Technologies Improves Customer Service by Achieving Worldwide Operational Visibility, Improving Planning and Scheduling and Providing Greater Web Access

El Segundo, Calif., September 9, 2004 — Glovia International, a subsidiary of Fujitsu (TSE:6702) and a leading provider of extended ERP solutions for engineer-to-order and high volume manufacturers, announced today that Axcelis Technologies, Inc. will migrate to the current version of glovia.com, glovia.com 7, to capitalize on enhanced functionality of the product. With Glovia, Axcelis has achieved worldwide visibility of company wide operations and inventory, improved planning and scheduling, and enhanced Web access for employees, customers and suppliers.

Axcelis is a leading provider of innovative, high-productivity solutions for top semiconductor manufacturers. Axcelis has been a long time Glovia customer, starting back in 1993 when the company was part of Eaton Corporation.

With close to 40 sales and service offices around the world, it is imperative Axcelis have worldwide visibility into critical company-wide operations and inventory to be able to coordinate resources and best meet customer demands. glovia.com enables Axcelis to aggregate total demand and centrally plan for the production capacity and supplies required to satisfy that demand. The newest version, glovia.com 7, provides new solutions to continue improving supply chain performance and collaboration with customers and suppliers. The solution also includes more than 60 individual enhancements to its core ERP functionality and seamlessly integrates Glovia's existing e-business application extensions.

"By providing comprehensive functionality for all phases of the product lifecycle, glovia.com enables Axcelis to manage their entire business with one integrated solution," said Yuji Nakasu, president and CEO for Glovia International.
