Glovia Expands Management Team to Drive Product Development

Navin Goel Promoted to Vice President of Products to Strengthen Product Quality and Development

El Segundo, Calif., Dec. 28, 2004 — Glovia International, a subsidiary of Fujitsu (TSE:6702) and a leading provider of extended ERP solutions for engineer-to-order and high volume manufacturers, announced today that Navin Goel has been promoted to Vice President of Products. The management team expansion will further facilitate the development and quality of Glovia's extended ERP solution, glovia.com.

As Vice President of Products, Goel is responsible for managing the entire products group as well as product quality assurance (QA). In addition, he will directly manage all research and development functions to continue developing a comprehensive solution that helps manufacturers manage and improve their business. A thirteen-year veteran with Glovia, Goel most recently served as Director of Research & Development. He holds an electronics engineering degree from Aligarh Muslim University in India.

"Navin's promotion is recognition of the quality and depth of expertise he has provided to Glovia and the development of its products over the past thirteen-years," stated Randy Ehler, Executive Vice President of Research & Development. "I'm confident that Navin will continue to enhance our extended ERP solution and develop innovative solutions that provide value to both our current and prospective customers."

glovia.com is a proven, comprehensive, integrated, and flexible solution that provides manufacturers with advanced capabilities to manage and improve their entire business —from product design, procurement, planning and manufacturing to sales, fulfillment, installation and support. The expansion of the R&D department will advance both the quality and management of product development as Glovia moves towards the next version of glovia.com.
