Glovia Offers Customers Remote Managed Services for Essential System Maintenance Activities

Technical Assistance and Support Provided for Preventative Maintenance, Patch Application, Database Support and System Monitoring

El Segundo, Calif., July 11, 2006 — Glovia International, a subsidiary of Fujitsu and a leading provider of extended ERP solutions for engineer-to-order and high volume manufacturers, announced today the company is offering Remote Managed Services (RMS) to assist and support customers essential system maintenance activities. The service offering also extends companies' internal IT resources by enabling the outsourcing of some or all of the activities involved in maintaining their system.

RMS is well suited for customers that need to focus on core competencies and lack the IT resources or skills sets to sufficiently manage their Glovia ERP solution, glovia.com. RMS provides the technical assistance and support to outsource their IT functions associated with managing and maintaining glovia.com.

RMS helps control the costs of keeping an enterprise system current and performing well through a combination of preventative and proactive procedures.

Key Service Offerings Include

- Periodic comprehensive remote system "check-up" and preventative maintenance.
- Advanced database performance management
- Database space management
- Database integrity checks with Glovia data dictionary
- Database monitoring of log files
- Database backup procedures and verification
- Audit of procedures and recovery testing
- Database "refresh" of secondary environment
- Maintenance of multiple Glovia software environments
- Loading/applying software patches to the glovia.com environment(s)
- Highlighting/reporting customization impacts
- Loading/applying Oracle software patches or upgrades
- Periodic reports, analysis, and capacity planning

"As many companies have limited budgets, IT may see a leveling off or a decrease in resources. Just meeting the normal maintenance requirements of your enterprise applications can become a real challenge," states Neil Laws, Technical Services Director for Glovia International. "As a company we strive to do whatever we can to help our customers be successful. We believe this RMS offering will lighten the burden for those companies without the resources to adequately maintain their system."
